

Tackle ED with GD

The serious concern of men about the condition forced the medical professionals to find out a solution. After commencing research for many years, they came up with medications like Viagra, Levitra and Cialis. All these medications are of course not the cure of the condition but definitely the treatment. One can get a strong erection for a long time sufficient for sexual pleasure by consuming any of these medications.

But some people were not still satisfied with the solution as it was too costly. So they remained away from the treatment and rather allowed themselves to face the consequences leading the same stressful lives.

And then, the generic versions of Viagra, Levitra and Cialis came to the forth like a divine boon. Generic drugs (GD) were quite affordable. But still the questions of safety and effectual appeared. It's because everyone wondered about the process of availability of a drug with equal amount of safety and effectiveness at such a low price. They were all convinced when they came to know that the generic versions of these medications were less costly because there was no investment for research, development, advertisement and promotion.

All the good manufacturing practices are followed to produce generic drugs. Without that, FDA doesn't allow any generic drug firm to continue. All the active ingredients of the brand version are used at the same extent in the generic version of the drug. That means it's the same formula with a new name.

The consumers have many options in the category of generic drugs for the treatment of ED. There are many forms of generic Viagra itself like Kamagra, Caverta, Silagra, Zenegra, Penegra, Edegra, Sildenafil Citrate and Kamagra Oral Jelly. Generic Cialis or Tadalafil also have several forms like Tadalafil, Forzest and Apcalis.

So consumers, earlier you were wondering about the treatment. You got it. Then, you wished for a cheaper option. You got the generic versions. And giving rise to your wishes, now you have many forms of the generic versions to cater the different needs of different consumers.
